The meeting took the form of a social gathering, featuring contests, games and lunch.

At a previous meeting of the Anglican Church Choir members and a few interested young people, held on Thursday evening, October 29, after choir practice, the President, Miss Barbara Rennie, and the Secretary, Miss Alina Hopkins, were elected. Tuesday evening was voted the most suitable to hold all further meetings.

An organization meeting was held on Tuesday, November 10th, and the following were elected to office: Mr. Elton Barlow, Vice-President; Mr. Norma Smith, Treasurer; and these committee members will set for a three month period: Devotional—Miss Frieda Bond, Miss Jennie Bruce, and Miss Jean MacLean.

The Educational group used their portion of time in determining the mental alertness of all those present by a Quiz. The Entertainment and Social Committee followed up with a very enjoyable Chinese spelling-bee.

Then the Works Committee held a round table discussion of ways and means to collect and mend broken toys and distributing the same to the needy.

Any assistance in the form of toys, paints, brushes, mending material, etc., will be gladly accepted. Please contact Mr. Ted Redmond.

A Christmas Letter To The Boys In The Services

Dear Fellow:

Perhaps you don't expect this because you see, we, the people of Bassano—over 500 of us—have decided to write you a letter.

We are the farmers and the housewives, the clerks and the truckers, the brothers and sisters, sweethearts and parents, uncles and aunts you left behind.

We know you'll get lots of letters from home but we thought we'd all join in and write one for all of us. We have to do it now because, while Christmas is still a month away, it will be around that day when some of you will read this.

As a matter of fact, Christmas has already come and gone for many of us. It came when we started to gather things for your Christmas parcels; it went when we mailed them.

What's doing at home? Mom and Dad and the kids are fine. They're a little older. They're working a little harder, living a little more quietly, putting a little more of their money into the war. The younger fellows are following you into the services; they're at Red Deer, Edmonton, Melton, Borden, and they're hoping to get home for Christmas. After that they're hoping they'll be able to join you over there.

And Christmas—what about Christmas? Well, it's going to be almost as different for us here at home as it is for you fellows. For one thing, we won't put up a Christmas tree this year. What's the use—you aren't here to enjoy it. Others of us will put the Christmas tree where it has been every Christmas just because it has always been there. But we know you'll be thinking about it being there.

The Christmas cake and the mince meat? Mom's been trying to get the raisins and all the other things. She did get them, and the sugar too, for the one she sent to you. I guess we'll have a cake alright. It may not be like the ones you used to know, but it will be a cake.

The presents? Not so much now or so many, because some of us haven't as much money and there aren't as many things you can get. But there will be some.

But, most of all, we want you, and you know fellows, you were pretty important to our Christmas.

It's a little hard to tell you just how much you mean to us at home, it isn't an easy thing for the people of Bassano to sit down and tell you how much you mean to us, day in and day out, month in and month out, and especially at Christmas time when everything in life seems to mean more.

Your families are thinking of you and so are your friends. We hope you've got your parcels that the various women's organizations have sent you, from Gem, Husar, Rosemary, Makepeace, Countess and Bassano, and we hope you realize that they are only some of the friends you have. There are men who are trying to protect your interests at home, the men who are trying to see to it that when you come home, you'll come home to a better Bassano, and a better Canada. They are your friends too, but they don't and many Christmas presents.

We're pretty proud of you fellows. We are proud of the job you are doing and the job you've done and we know that when the test comes, you Bassano fellows have the stuff to meet it. That is why we are buying Victory Bonds, paying taxes, putting up with things and doing without things we hadn't dreamed about when you left here. We want you to have the equipment and the training and the materials. These things aren't so hard to do when we know we're doing them for you and when we know what you are going through.

It's a big job to speak for the people of Bassano. Perhaps we haven't done it very well. But we do want you to know, fellows, that we are thinking about, and how proud we are of you this Christmas time.

And we do want to wish you a Merry Christmas—hundreds of them to all of you everywhere.

ALLIED VICTORY ON EVERY FRONT

Past Week Has Marked A Decided Change on All Fronts

During the past few days the war news from every front has been most encouraging.

In North Africa the remnants of Rommel's German-Italian forces are still on the run and are being given no time to reorganize to make a stand. The British 8th Army is pressing and no doubt would have overtaken the routed Germans had they not been delayed by having to keep their communication lines open on their rear and the pace had been so fast that this is becoming more difficult as they advance.

However, the routed Germans are being given no peace as the Allied American and British armies are pounding them night and day with no let up.

A big British-American invasion force in Africa at the Eastern end of the Mediterranean are likewise doing a good job. London—Driving, forward, "as fast as possible, according to plan" a Joint Anglo-American force, was reported at grips Monday with Axis troops acknowledged by Berlin and Rome to have been rushed across the Mediterranean to make a light for France's key North African province, Tunisia.

Opposing the powerful Allied force were some 10,000 Nazi and Fascists to whom Hitler was reported to have sent a personal and urgent exhortation to hold on at any cost.

Entry of the fast moving Allied force under Lt-Gen. Kenneth Anderson in Tunisia, "according to plan" was announced Wednesday by Lt-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said advanced elements swept in from Algeria. A German reconnaissance unit had been compelled to retreat in a clash in Tunisia.

This was said to have been the first clash between French troops and Axis land forces in Tunisia. The German and Italian claimed their troops were sent to Tunisia "with full approval of French civilian and military authorities."

Out to win and keep control of the sky over Tunisia, the R. A. F. delivering punishing blows to the Axis landing field at Tunis over the week-end.

The Germans said their airmen bombed the harbor and airport at Bône, Algerian jumping off place for the Allied drive into Tunisia. The Allies had about 1,250 miles to go to form a junction between their forces in Tunisia and the 8th Army in Libya, but the units in Tunisia were closer to Tripoli than Rommel.

Countess Couple Married Here

EMIL—CADOR

A wedding of much interest to Bassano and community, united two of Bassano's oldest families when Phyllis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cador of Coultis, formerly of Bassano, became the bride of Mr. Roy Emil, son of Mr. M. Emil and the late Mrs. Z. H. of Countess and recently of Bassano. It was solemnly performed by Father J. Morrow at one o'clock, Sunday, November 15th. The bride, wearing the Church of England pink tulle, was accompanied by her father as the wedding march was played by Mrs. J. Maguire of Gem, was attired in a rose crepe afternoon dress with a brown felt off-the-face hat and a corsage of pink roses. Her carriage was of Tallman roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. O. Ferraby, sister of the groom. She wore a dress of turquoise blue with black hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom was supported by Mr. Albert Cador, brother of the bride.

After the wedding dinner was served to 25 guests at the home of the bride's parents at Countess. The bride, who was born in Bassano, had until recently, been a nurse in the Bassano Municipal Hospital.

The many friends of the happy couple in Bassano, Countess and community wish them much happiness and good luck in their new home on the groom's farm near Countess.

The dance floor is now being removed to make way for three good sheets of ice. Curlers from Rosemary will be on hand again and members expressed the hope that Crowfoot will again be represented. The club will again take out membership in the Canadian Society.

Last year's fees, rules and regulations will apply this year.

The ladies will organize their own club again this year, as they have done in the past.

Those wishing to curl, should place their names with anyone of the above named membership committees.

A diminution of tea supplies to North America has called attention to the South American evergreen tree, Mate, which has been used for centuries in that continent as a beverage. Like tea it has a somewhat bitter taste, a liking for which has to be acquired.

Never before have we had such an abundance of feed. Nothing stands in the way of tremendous increases in livestock except labor. It is with this problem that Mr. Pickens will be expected to cope. His many farmer friends will make him at the class B fairs and elsewhere, and will look forward to his return.

Farm accounts form a permanent record of the business transactions involved in the yearly operation of the farm. In order to assist the farmer in keeping such a record, the King's Printer, Ottawa, has available a simple and useful little account book. It covers all farm operations, and at the same time does not incur a special knowledge of expert accountancy. This book is entitled "Farm Account Book" and may be obtained at the nominal price of 10 cents.

New Links With Alaska Highway

Official opening of the 1000 mile U.S. highway to Alaska on November 20 has drawn interest to Alberta links with this new road, which is expected to play a major part in the development of the northwest. Alberta now is linked by means of a highway running from Grande Prairie to the Peace River block by way of Peace Coups and Dawson Creek, on the south side of the Peace River.

This winter a road will be open from Hines Creek, on the north side of the river, to Port St. John, it is learned. This will be available after freeze-up, when it will be possible to make river crossings. The Trans-Canada highway, completion of which is scheduled shortly, also will link with the Alaska Highway, in the opinion of Hon. T. B. McCausten, minister of highways for Ontario.

Thus, a new highway picture is unfolding, showing Alberta in a key position and making the interests of motorists all the more important in this province.

Alberta's part in future development will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Alberta Motor Association in Calgary on Dec. 12.

According to the last official report of the 1942 season, the Canadian apple crop is now set at 4,210,000 barrels, an increase of 10 per cent on the 1941 crop, but 13 per cent below the five-year (1935-40) average of 4,813,600 barrels.

The most thrilling moment of a paratrooper's training comes with his first jump. Here a few of the Canadians who took a full paratrooper's course with the U.S. Army at Fort Benning, Ga., await the jump master's command to take off on their first jump. Ready to lead off is Lt. W. Cote, of Montreal, French Canadian jumper.

HELP FOR BRAVE ALLY FROM CANADA IS AIM OF AID TO RUSSIA FUND

In response to a widespread demand from all parts of Canada, a Canadian Aid to Russia Fund has been organized, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. Stanley McLean, head of Canada Packers, Ltd., with headquarters in Toronto.

The fund in Canada will provide an opportunity to Canadians to express in a tangible form and in continuous measure, the admiration, gratitude and sympathy they feel in their hearts for the heroic Russian people, the people who, as Mrs. Churchill, recently stated, "have set an unparalleled example to all of us."

Russia's needs are so great that everybody's help is needed. The fighters behind the lines, the refugees in the far eastern areas and in the reconquered territories need warm clothing, boots, bedding, foodstuffs, medical supplies. They need large quantities of these things and help to them must go continuously.

Many Lands Sending Aid

From Great Britain, United States, the Argentine, Palestine, Australia, New Zealand and South American countries, citizens are sending help continuously to Russia. This is done through both Red Cross societies and voluntary committees. The latter are able to do what the Red Cross may not be able to do. In Canada the Red Cross Society last year collected, through a public appeal, the sum of $860,000, and now the Canadian Aid to Russia fund will promote on a continuous basis, aid to Russia activities throughout the Dominion.

The aid-to-Russia movement in Britain has no parallel in any of the Allied countries. That movement has been described as the most dynamic of the civilian war activities among the British masses. "Everyone is participating in this work, from school children who take part in the "penny-a-week" drive, to the aged in institutions who knit and do what they can to add to the total aid sent to Russia.

Raise $10,000,000 in Britain

Mrs. Churchill's aid-to-Russia fund commenced in October of 1941. It has to date collected 2,100,000 pounds (approximately $10,000,000) and practically every penny has been spent—by December 3 of this year, Mrs. Churchill reported that the fund had 250 pounds on hand and all past and future orders paid.

There is no dearth of imagination and energy in the British aid-to-Russia movement, either in collecting money at spending it on things that Russia needs. Eighteen consignments of medical supplies and equipment, totalling 2,571 tons, have been sent to Russia by Mrs. Churchill's fund.

Recently, at the request of the British government, the Churchill fund sent to Russia 400,000 woolen garments for refugees restored to the regained territory. This order was filled with the help of the British Women's Voluntary services. Mrs. Churchill has explained that in order to procure some of the articles, special methods of production had to be introduced and priorities obtained from the British government.

Convoys Get Through

Good Market For Christmas Turkey

The Christmas market looks good for turkeys, says A. G. Taylor, who has charge of the raising of turkeys at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. There's plenty of feed available as a result of the recent record grain crops, but he says, if producers want to make the best profit, the birds should be in prime condition before being killed.

There's no hard and fast rule as to how to fatten turkeys for market. The principal demand is for top grade birds.

The special feeding of turkeys for the Christmas trade should be started at once, says Mr. Taylor. Birds on the range should not be penned during the intensive feeding period. Give them plenty of feed and they will go far away. It's well to provide some protection for them from cold winds and bad weather. Mr. Taylor recommends feeding the birds during the fattening period three times daily and the feed should be a feed mash in the morning and home grown grains at noon and in the evening. A good mash is made of equal parts of ground oats, barley meal or ground buckwheat and ground wheat with ten per cent beef meal and 2 per cent ground charcoal added. The mash should be moist, but not sloppy. Any left when the birds have satisfied themselves should be taken away. Water, grain and shell should always be available.

Additional information on how to feed turkeys to get the most profit, can be obtained from the nearest Dominion Experimental Farm or Agricultural Representative. There's going to be no difficulty in selling well fed turkeys this year at an attractive price—but poorly finished birds will be difficult to market.

manak had been lost this summer. Give Canadians Chance

The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund Inc. has been organized to provide, on a continuing basis, an opportunity to Canadian to send to the Russian people the body-warming clothing, the healing medicines, the heart-warming sympathy and friendship that they need in their hour of crisis and suffering.

There are many things needed in Russia which can be supplied by Canada. By using ingenuity and goodwill, Canadians will be able to make and collect a variety of necessities for the gallant people in the Soviet Union.

The head office of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund is room 205, 50 King St. W., Toronto. Contributions and inquiries may be sent there. Further information will be issued shortly.

COMMUNITY CAMPAIGNS

TO PROMOTE NUTRITION

SUGGESTED AS WAR JOB

If your community is looking for a new war job to tackle this winter why not start a local nutrition campaign? There is no doubt that malnutrition is a serious problem in Canada and that it is seriously undermining the war effort of countless thousands by sapping their strength and lowering their efficiency. It is, up to volunteer groups in cities, towns and rural areas to help Canada's war effort by raising the nutritional standards in their communities.

Here is the way to start a local campaign. Any group of persons interested in better nutrition should call together representatives of all interested organizations and form a Nutrition Committee. This committee can then secure assistance either from the Nutrition Committee of the Provincial Department of Health or from Nutrition Services at Ottawa. Either of these organizations stands ready to supply a constant flow of information, pamphlets and ideas.

Baked Beans Are Nourishing Meal, Inexpensive Too

Baked beans and brown bread for Saturday night supper is almost a ritual among Maritimeers, and few will deny the merits of a piping hot dish of home baked beans for supper any chilly evening. Beans of course are a most substitute as are the other legumes, peas and lentils. There will more of the white navy and yellow eyed beans on the market this year. So get out your bean crock and prepare to serve these inexpensive and nourishing legumes frequently. By the way, when you bake beans be sure to make plenty to allow for second helpings all round and some extra.

Left-over baked beans make delicious soup; mash the beans, add vegetable water, stock or milk and a little extra seasoning. They make grand sandwich fillings too, mashed and moistened with a little chili sauce, or mixed with peanut butter and moistened with milk, perfect in brown bread for the war worker's or school child's lunch box. Canned beans add something different to a salad bowl too.

Have you ever baked beans in the furnace? In these days of fuel conservation it's a grand idea. The bean pot is set on the inside ledge of the furnace door; potatoes will bake there too. Some furnaces the ledge is too narrow to hold a bean pot so it's well to measure the ledge first. Lard or dripping can replace the fat salt pork since patriotic Canadians are not buying pork just now. A pinch of ginger added to baked beans gives an extra zip.

Navy or yellow eyed beans make an excellent vegetable served in tomato sauce or with mustard butter. They are good in salads, make grand soup and substitute for meat in many tasty and inexpensive main dishes. The home grown yellow eyed and navy beans can be substituted for limas which are nearly all imported, in any recipe calling for the latter.

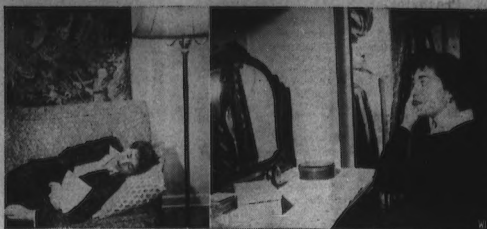

These recipes were tested by the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Some Canadian communities which are carrying on nutrition campaigns are already able to report definite improvement in nutritional standards. Various methods have been used with outstanding success. Women have formed themselves into small groups for a series of lectures under the leadership of trained Home Economists. School children have been included in special projects, grocers have arranged exhibits, empty store windows have been used for nutrition displays, special radio features and newspaper articles dealing with nutritional problems have been arranged.

"Lights Out" Save Power For War Industry

No one can estimate the amount of power that is wasted in Canadian homes where people neglect to turn out the lights when they are not required. For two big reasons such waste is foolish. First, it uses up power which could help other invested in War Savings Certificates. In Quebec and Ontario people are being asked to reduce their home power consumption by at least 20 per cent because this power is urgently needed for war industries. Two common power wasters are the people who get in a comfortable position to read a book then, with the light full on, drop off to sleep, and those who leave cupboard lights on while they go about their business in other parts of the house. In both cases they are wasting needed power and wasting money.
